
Introduction

Welcome to the TRAILtool – your guide to transdisciplinary education.

Begin your Trail, where you'll discover what transdisciplinary education means (discover your role), build a strong team (at base camp), and learn how to design, implement, and evaluate education (on the successive paths). At the camps, you'll then reflect on your journey.

This web tool was developed by the research group Transdisciplinary Collaboration in Education at Avans University of Applied Sciences. We combine our own current research insights with practical tools, theory, and examples from the Netherlands and beyond.

Our goal: to contribute to better transdisciplinary education in a playful yet scientifically grounded way.

Do you have valuable information or examples? Get in touch with us!

Objects:

- Torches: Click on these information-rich torches: under each torch, you'll find an introduction, theory, and practical tools and examples.
- Individual routes: Select your role to receive specific information.
- Tents: Enter the camps to first form your team and then reflect on your journey.

-
- Backpack: Save all information and download it at the end of your journey.
 - Index: Navigate to specific parts of the journey if you want to revisit something.