
Your Expedition Begins!

Welcome to the TRAIL: a guide to support teachers, students, researchers, and external partners in Transdisciplinary Education. Our goal is to foster understanding of transdisciplinarity and provide building blocks for its development and implementation.

Transdisciplinary education connects academic theory with practice, and schools with society. It brings together different perspectives to develop innovative solutions for complex problems.

Your role as a societal partner is essential in this process. Your experience and knowledge are valuable additions, serving as a bridge between the academic world and society.

Whether you are looking for fresh ideas from students, want to refresh your own knowledge, or seek ways to directly contribute to a better and sustainable society, we offer insights, challenges, and practical applications to get started.

Let's begin!
