
Your Expedition Begins!

Hello researcher, we are thrilled you have decided to join us on this exciting adventure. Welcome to the TRAIL, a handy tool designed to help you fly into the world of Transdisciplinary Collaboration.

Our aim is to make learning fun, fair, and relevant to real-life challenges. If you have ever felt like your research doesn't quite connect with the world around you, transdisciplinarity is here to help bridge that gap and make your studies more impactful.

As you start exploring the TRAIL, whether you are a seasoned researcher or just starting out, get ready for a journey full of interesting discoveries. We are here to help, whatever your background. Let's work together to tackle real-world problems and find ways for you to make a difference.

In the first part of the TRAIL Expedition, you will briefly dive into the world of Transdisciplinary Learning, gearing up to meet your expedition team at the Basecamp. It's going to be an adventure filled with new experiences and learning opportunities.